Grant & Eisenhofer Actively Investigating Madoff's Multi-Billion Dollar Fraud Scheme on Behalf of Investors

Grant & Eisenhofer P.A. is actively and aggressively investigating Bernard Madoff and the massive Ponzi scheme he is alleged to have pulled-off. The alleged fraud is estimated to have cost investors at least $50 billion and is being called one of the largest individual Wall Street frauds in history. Grant & Eisenhofer's investigation includes questioning whether accounting firms and other third parties were diligent enough in investigating Mr. Madoff to ensure that their money was safe.

Shortly before his stunning arrest, Madoff admitted that his enterprise was insolvent and had been for years. A giant Ponzi scheme lies at the heart of this case, resulting in violations of securities laws and related federal laws, as well as claims of fraud, fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, breach of contract, conversion, unjust enrichment, fraudulent conveyance and breach of fiduciary duty.

As one of the leading securities litigation firms in the United States, Grant & Eisenhofer has a long history of successfully representing investors that have been damaged by fraud, greed and wrongdoing. In the past five years, Grant & Eisenhofer has recovered more than $12 billion for investors; hundreds of millions of which were obtained from individuals, accounting firms and other third parties.

Grant & Eisenhofer has been lead counsel in many of the largest securities class action recoveries in U.S. history, including a $3.2 billion recovery against Tyco International. The Firm's multi-hundred million dollar recoveries against companies such as General Motors, Daimler Chrysler, and Royal Dutch Shell exemplify the firm's ability to successfully litigate against the largest corporations in the world. The Firm serves as securities litigation counsel to some of the nation's largest state and municipal retirement systems, including the California Public Employees' Retirement System, New York State Common Retirement Fund, Ohio Public Employees' Retirement System, State of Wisconsin Investment Board, Teachers' Retirement System of Louisiana, PIMCO, Franklin Templeton, Trust Company of the West, The Capital Guardian Group and many other public and private domestic and foreign institutions.

In 2008, the Firm was cited by RiskMetrics as having the highest average investor recovery in securities class actions of any law firm in the U.S. This distinction is just one of the many reasons that investors consistently turn to Grant & Eisenhofer to represent them in matters such as the Madoff scheme.
